

Hal Stevens, MBA

Title I English

Hal Stevens has several decades of leadership experience in the for-profit area including founding and running a successful technology resale company (which did business in over 100 countries), and being a divisional Vice President for a multi-billion dollar food service distribution company. He also has over a decade of nonprofit leadership service including being a district governor with Rotary International.

Mr. Stevens facilitated the operations of several Rotary INTERACT high school level after school community service clubs and, he successfully coached a STEM youth group in the Jr. FIRST® Lego League competition. This team was one of the few teams at that level chosen worldwide to go to the FIRST® international robotics competition. He was also an adjunct professor at the Embry Riddle University campus here in the Oklahoma City area.

He is a life-long learner who has earned an Master of Business Administration degree in finance from St. John's University in New York, a bachelor's degree in economics from The State University of New York, a professional certificate in human resource management from Michigan State University-Eli Broad College of Business, and certificates in nonprofit management from the University of Texas and professional fundraising from Boston University. Additionally, He will soon begin his doctorate in education.

Mr. Stevens enjoys learning about cultural diversity and has a passion for travel. Along with his wife and daughter, he has visited over 30 countries, many more than once, and been on almost every continent.

